Introduction

In any society, one of the major factors of economic growth is human capital. If we don't provide women & men with adequate access to education, health care, employment and do not share the common resources for development, then we shall lose half of the country's potential. Gender equality and participation of women in different activities can bring huge economic benefits and, as a result, can enhance social development indicators. It is high time to understand the role of women in family, society and nation building activities and to appreciate the need for change in our approach towards women. The impact of our attitude towards women has to be reinvestigated for the purpose of inclusive development. This programme will help understand the need of change in our present functioning style, if required. This course aims to make the participants aware about the need of change required to implement the concept of equality in respect of gender in family, work place and in society. It will also help the participants in taking sound personnel management decisions keeping in view of the gender issues in mind.

The Centre invites applications from research scholars, faculty member of colleges and universities, management executives and members of voluntary organization's who wish to deepen their understanding on the subject.

This 14-day Programme has been designed to familiarize academicians, practitioner and researchers with different gender related issues which may appear in different working areas of development. This will augment the existing knowledge and understanding of various gender related issues and enhance the horizon of their practice. The knowledge of modern techniques applied to research is imperative for quality work and this workshop aims at giving a comprehensive insight on those and will enable the researchers and academicians to apply those information and understanding rightly.

Objective of the Workshop

- ❖ To enhance the capacity of the participants to deal with socially constructed gender norms that affect the daily lives of women and men.
- ❖ To create awareness about gender sensitivity and to inculcate an egalitarian behaviour to foster gender equality.
- ❖ To make participants aware on gender concepts and to see how gender determines multiple aspects of our life.
- ❖ To identify the nature of gender inequalities in day to day life.
- ❖ To measure the gender inequalities.
- ❖ To equip participants in identifying and addressing the harmful impact of gender norms, gender bias and understanding the importance of gender mainstreaming.
- ❖ To enhance the capacity building of the participants with the knowledge and skills needed to ensure that gender mainstream is taken into consideration in their future programme activities.

Expected Outcome

At the end of the workshop the participant will be able to:

1. Understand different issues related to gender, social structures, women's empowerment etc.
2. Understand how women's opportunities and achievements are constrained by oppression and privilege.
3. Understand the critical issues and their analysis and choose the right path of actions for social change.
