RABBITAN

Rabindra Sangit Gabeshana Kendra is a research centre under the Music department, Sangit Bhavava Visva-Bharati.

It was established in 2013 and on 26th December 2014, the building of the Gabeshana Kendra was opened for the research Scholars.

Rabindra Sangit Gabeshana Kendra may also be viewed as complementary—the music counterpart—to Rabindra Bhavana (the repository of Tagore's writings) and Kala Bharana, (the Archive of Tagore's Paintings)

The Centre can be a meeting place for Scholars who are working on Tagore's Creative works.

Gabeshana Kendra already published edited research works and doing works on Tagore's writings on Music, Art, and Aesthetics.

The Museum is also opened from 10 a.m to 5 p.m. for Scholars and interested visitors.

This centre organises Seminar, Workshop and Performances if the proposal is a newly research theme on Tagore's Creation Specially on Music, Dance & Drama.

Museum

Within a short span the Rabindra Sangit Gabeshana Kendra has created a rich museum of resources related to Rabindranath Tagore songs, dances and theatre. This promises to be a source of future research on this subject.

Library

The library dedicated to books and articles Rabindranath's music, dance and drama houses 2450 books.

Archives

Among the archival resources, the major attractions include manuscripts of Mayar Khela including the poet's own corrections and the translations of a few songs of the dance drama.

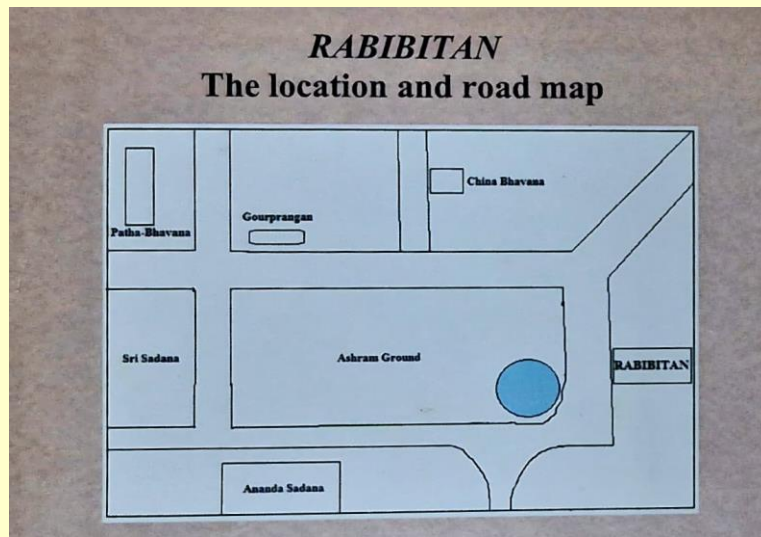

Audio Visual

The Centre houses 51 Long Playing Discs and records of 50 cultural festivals of Santiniketan.

The mandate of the Gabeshana Kendra includes the operation of a library, archive of records, documents on Rabindrasangit and exhibitions on manuscripts, notations and memorabilia related to Tagore's songs. It also exhibits photographs and books of well-known Rabindrasangit artists and displays instruments used in Rabindrasangit.
