

Debashis Bandyopadhyay has taught English Literature and Culture Studies in several universities in India and abroad for more than thirty years. As a Fulbright Scholar he taught and pursued research in California State University, Fresno, USA. He was also a Postdoctoral fellow at St Antony's College, Oxford University, UK. He is widely published in India and abroad and has been a Visiting Professor in Mexico and Greece. His research interests include Psychoanalysis and literary and cultural studies. His passionate interest in Tagoreana has led him to assume the present position. He was formerly the Vice Chancellor of Kazi Nazrul University, Asansol, and Kalinga Institute of Social Sciences, Bhubaneswar.