(Sub: Exchange of Students between Yunnan University, China and Visva-Bharati, India)

Respected Sir,

In order to promote the educational and cultural exchanges between India and China, Visva-Bharati signed a Memorandum of Understanding with Yunnan University, Kunming, People 's Republic of China on July, 2011. Visva-Bharati is the first Central University in India to sign a MOU with a Chinese University. Under this MOU, more than 250 students from Visva-Bharati and Yunnan University had already visited each other's university. The students from Cheena Bhavana are selected by the Chinese Teachers. The Principals of Vidya, Bhasha ,PSV, Binoy Bhavana, Siksha Bhavana send the names of the students of their Bhavanas. In 2017, twenty students from Cheena Bhavana and other departments of Visva-Bharati Visited Yunnan university. Now, Yunnan University had again proposed to send about twenty (20) students of our university (about twelve students from Cheena Bhavana and the rest from other Bhavanas) along with one teacher/ Research Scholar(Cheena Bhavana) to Yunnan University by the middle of May, 2018 for a period of about 10 days. Under this programme, the students will have to bear the travel expenses and visa fees. The accommodation, food and travel expenses of our students at Yunnan will be taken care by the Yunnan University.

Among this one group of students (only those who know Chinese) may visit Beijing and the rest will be there in Kunming and return to India.

Sir, in this situation, I hope that you will be kind enough to approve this programme so that we can expedite the process of exchange of students between Yunnan University and Visva-Bharati.

Yours faithfully

....READING FROM THE GENDERED LAND

BACK TO MAIN PAGE

An Architectural Installation and a Durational Reading Performance
(1st December to 31st December, 2016),

Concieved , Coordinated and conducted by Sanchayan Ghosh

A Brief Concept Note:

Cultural theorist and art historian Amit Mukhopadhaya in his essay “LAND, Natural ,Gendered”, placed the notion of Land from a Plato’s Cave to Hitler’s Bunker as a basic structural framework of patriarchy , and war and occupation and incorporates the idea of motherhood as a natural organic space in between that projects compassion and hosting . This present architectural Installation maps this context of gendered relationship of representation of Land by reading texts through history where woman has been placed as the protagonist. The Installation stretches the Plutonic mapping of Nature in the form of a Polyhedron into an organic space of interaction that opens up into three circular spaces of collective reading.

Reading and conversing has been traditionally one of the earliest form of dissemination of knowledge in public sphere. A group of nine women will read different texts from Epic, plays, classical and contemporary feminist theories, text on environmental issues and diaries for a period of thirty days and will constantly rework and out stretch the space with their bodies addressing areas like power, gender discrepancy, environment issues, ecology etc. Public Reading will be explored as an intermittent space between autocracy and democracy.

Shamiana as an Intermittent Space between Private and Public

In this context a shamiyana will be placed as an interface which will intend to exemplify these two specific zones of operations as a physical space of viewing and the physicality of experiencing/participating.

Shamiyana is basically a temporary space for meeting and socializing, mostly popular in tropical landscape. It’s open in four sides and can be placed in outdoors as an independent structure. It is also used as temporary shade in indoor courtyards of Houses. It generates a horizontal projection of space with no frontality like a staged auditorium.

In the present project the physical space of Shamiana has been contextualized as a space in between earth and air, a reflection of a land. It is projected as a space between higher and lower , a space between superior and inferior, a space between autocracy and democracy. A space that is dialogical, stretchable and transforming. This is made out of Lycra (a textile generated as a Post World II chemical byproduct and popularized in USA and world over as a skin tight, perfect body shaping textile). The Lycra made shamiana in this context is stretched to the ground as three circular spaces that will host three reading spaces and space for temporary sitting and meeting.

Performers will be both from India and Bangladesh who will work collectively in a workshop situation and contribute to the texts from their own cultural background and world literature to exemplify the position of women and our present state of land and environment

Present body of text that will be read are

General assessment by the international coordinating teachers (ACW) : An excellent semester of work, interface and engagement. Aman Preet consistently dedicated her time, efforts and intelligence to maximising her stay in the school. She has the ability to collaborate with other students, not so easy at times, and she showed the ability to the think about the fluidity between culture, theory and everyday life situations between both her country of origin (India) and the specificities of France and Angers. Her collaboration for the ARC Course with Sangita, the mud mural is exemplary in that it represents enormous background and materials research, exhaustive preparatory designs and drawings, collaboration with other students, project management and execution of the work itself. The mud wall is also exceptional in the complex ways it combines traditional Indian formats with contemporary ideas about 'alterity of speech'. General grade: A		Total : 30/30 ECTS credits	Total: 210/210 points

Bilan/exam General assessment by the international coordinating teachers (ACW) : Sukanya benefited a great deal from the technical development of her sculptures in metal and the welding instruction she received from our technician. Her production was regular and of a good quality, however the subject of the sculptures was not always clear in the form. It was a pity that she did not seek more discussion with the teachers, especially in relation to her views on the status of women and European and American feminist art. The opportunity for exchange could have been better exploited. Sukanya realised that her exchange had remained limited and aims to research further the questions raised during her final assessment. She worked hard on her sculptures and during our few discussions proved to be a curious and intelligent student.	1 semester	6 out of 8	42 out of 56

General assessment by the international coordinating teachers (ACW) : Nadwdsa presented preliminary works made specifically for three courses he was taking; painting, sculpture and an ARC course. Perhaps better described as preliminary works that moved a way from his usual 3-D sculptural form, these works enabled Nadwdsa to try things he had not before, using the time at the school in Angers as an experimental lab.

Commission for documenta 14 radio Every Time A Ear Di Soun

Dear Sanchayan Ghosh,
Dear Anshuman Dasgupta,

On behalf of documenta 14's Artistic Director Adam Szymczyk, I, Bonaventure Soh Bejeng Ndikung, Curator at Large for documenta 14, have the utmost pleasure to invite you to produce a one-hour sound piece for radio as part of documenta 14 Radio Every Time A Ear Di Soun. This project is realized in collaboration with Deutschlandradio Kultur / Marcus Gammel.

documenta is recognized as the world's largest and most renowned exhibition of contemporary art, presenting new directions to an international audience every five years. Accompanied by lively public debate, documenta serves as forum for reflection on and presentation of global developments in contemporary art, culture, and society, and as a tool for rewriting art history and redefining contemporary exhibition practice.

documenta was founded in Kassel by a group of experts and aficionados led by the artist and designer Arnold Bode. Their intention was to show that modern art had a place in the process of reconstructing German society after World War II. The specific timing and the initial choice of locale allowed documenta to evolve into a venture that has now been in progress for over sixty years; establishing a reputation as a constantly changing institution in the city of Kassel and as a major force in shaping discourse on contemporary art globally.

Each documenta is a unique endeavor that progresses toward a final outcome through multiple phases of research and discussion, based on the original concept proposed by the Artistic Director. For documenta 14, which will issue in Athens, Greece, and Kassel, Germany, from April until late September 2017, Adam Szymczyk envisioned a documenta radio that would relay select radio stations from around the world. This goes a long way to acknowledge the medium, format, and concept of radio and broadcasting as an aural artistic practice, which in his seminal 1936 publication Radio, Rudolf Arnheim attests to, stating that the psychological and artistic properties of radio as a medium has stood the test of time.

The conceptual point of departure for the project Every Time A Ear Di Soun is that, especially in the so-called oral cultures, histories are carried by the physicality of the sonorous and transmitted to the body. The embodied sound encrypts itself into a corporeal archive through its performativity and reiterations. The auditory phenomena of vocal utterances, speech, sound and music co-define a space and place and cultivate histories. That is to say, through sonority, subjectivities and space are impacted. In his "Reflections on Radio" (1930), Walter Benjamin states that "we need only reflect that the radio listener, unlike every other kind of audience, welcomes the human voice into his house like a visitor," while Arnheim reminds us that "the most elementary aural effects, however, do not consist in transmitting to us the meaning of the spoken word, or sounds which we know in actuality. The ‘expressive characteristics’ of sound affect us in a far more direct way, comprehensible without any experience by means of intensity, pitch, interval, rhythm and tempi, properties of sound which have very little to do with the objective meaning of the word or the sound.”

It is to this end that documenta 14 will like to relay your radio piece—irrespective of content, language, and other particularities—both through the Internet and SW and across eight radio stations to a worldwide audience, in the hope that these cross-pollinations of intensities, rhythms, histories and other narratives will leave an impact on the listener in space and time.

It goes without saying that we would greatly appreciate your participation in the documenta radio project. Upon interest we would then discuss the symbolic remuneration allocated for the collaboration.

Looking forward to your reply.

Best regards,

Adam Szymczyk

Sub: Invitation to participate in the "National Art Camp-2017"
Organised by Karnataka Chitrakala Parishath, Bengaluru,

Dear,

We take great pleasure in inviting you to be part of the National Art Camp-2017 which will commemorate the birth Centenary of Sri D. Devaraj Urs, an eminent political figure from Karnataka and a key support behind the establishment of our esteemed institution. This camp is scheduled from 14th to 19th February 2017 at our campus. It attempts to bring together artists who have worked mainly with painting as a medium of expression and is aimed at benefiting our community of students in particular and the art community of our Karnataka State in general.

For some of you who are not familiar with our organization, the Karnataka Chitrakala Parishath, established in 1960 and the College of Fine Arts started by it in 1964, was materialised largely due to the beneficence of Sri D. Devaraj Urs, the then Chief Minister of Karnataka. A significant contribution in this regard was by Prof. M.S.Nanjunda Rao, the founder General Secretary of Karnataka Chitrakala Parishath, who played a pivotal role by dedicating almost half a century of his life time in shaping it into a premier art institution of India.

Ever since its inception, the Karnataka Chitrakala Parishath and its College of Fine Arts have carved a niche for themselves in the field of Visual Arts not only in Karnataka but at the National level. It has emerged as an important centre for art collection possessing many rare art works produced by both Indian and foreign artists. The College of Fine Arts managed by the Parishath has gifted several renowned senior artists to the Nation. The 'Chitra Santhe' (Street-Art Fair) being organised by the Parishath annually for the last thirteen years has not only emerged as a major cultural event but also caught the imagination of art lovers all over the country. The Fine Arts College has also emerged as the most important centre for promoting.

BACK TO MAIN PAGE

Art Education at various levels. The College has been attracting students from not only Karnataka but also from other parts of the country.

As a formality, we request you to contribute minimum one artwork which will be cherished as part of the Karnataka Chitrakala Parishath Museum's permanent collection. We expect the work to be measuring not less than a size of 3'x3' or 3'x4'. The materials for creation of the artwork will be provided by us. You will be provided with an Honorarium of Rs.50,000/- in addition to your return air fare, besides extending comfortable boarding, lodging facilities and local conveyance.

We are eager to have you as our esteemed guest participating in this event. Kindly confirm us by e-mail to the our Convener of the event Prof. K. S. Appajaiah, the former Principal of College of Fine Arts, Karnataka Chitrakala Parishath – E-mail id: chitrakalaparishath@gmail.com. The Karnataka Chithrakala Parishath looks forward to your gracious contributions and presence in this significant event.

DAEGU-INDIA
Fine Arts Exchange Exhibition 2017
2017 대구-인도 미술교류전

인사말씀

오는 2017년 9월 25일부터 28일에 걸쳐, 한국의 대구미술협회와 인도 산티니케탄 비스바바라티 대학교 깔라바반 예술학과 간에 두 번째 미술교류전이 열리게 되어 진심으로 기쁘게 생각합니다. 이 행사는 한국과 인도 양 국가 간의 깊은 이해를 바탕으로 몇 년 전부터 시작된 국제 교류전입니다. 행사를 통해, 서로 다른 문화 및 예술 영역의 사고에 초점을 두면서도, 다양한 방식으로 예술에 대한 새로운 대화의 장을 만들어 나가는 것이 그 목적이라고 생각합니다.

이번에 저희 대학교 깔라바반 예술학과에서는 드로잉, 그림, 사진, 에칭, 공연 영상 기록, 사진 기록 자료 재활용, 비디오 프로젝션 등 여러 방법을 적용한 예술 작품을 준비했습니다. 이를 통해, 깔라바반 교수진들이 관심을 가지며 연구 중인 서로 다른 미술 기법 및 표현 방식을 강조하고자 합니다. 무엇보다도 이번 교류전을 통해, 양 국가 간에 친밀한 관계를 형성하며 미술 기법을 공유하면서, 가까운 미래에 좀더 다양한 방식으로 대화의 장을 만들 수 있을 것이라 생각합니다.

비스바바라티 대학교와 대구미술협회뿐 아니라, 나아가 양 국가 간에 긍정적 관계 형성을 위해 노력을 해 주시면서 이번 행사를 준비해주신 대구미술협회에 다시 한번 감사드립니다. 마지막으로 이번 행사가 성공적이면서도 의미있는 행사가 되도록 빛내주실 모든 참가자분들께 감사의 인사를 드립니다.

Greeting

I am very much delighted that for the second time an exchange programme on the basis of exhibition with the Daegue Fine Art Association, South Korea and the Department of Painting, Kala Bhavana, Visva Bharati, Santiniketan is happening at the Daegu Culture and Arts Center, South Korea from 25th - 28th of September 2017. It's an international exchange programme which initiated few years back with a great understanding between the two countries. The whole purpose at the back is to generate a new conversation between the multiple ways of art practices and focusing on different areas of thought as a whole.

This time Department of Painting, Kala Bhavana, Visva Bharati will showcase multiple kinds of mediums, which comprise drawings, paintings, photographs, etchings, documentation of performances, reuse of photo documented data's in painting, video projection etc, which again derive /underline the different practices and languages the faculties of Kala Bhavana are into. Above all I wholly believe that the outcome of bonding between these two countries and their art practices will generate a multiple layers of dialogue in near future.

I again entirely thankful to the Daegue Fine Art Association, for arranging such an event which will generate a positive bonding between the two institutions and between the two countries. At last, I thanks and congratulate all the participants of this grand show making a successful and meaningful episode.

The proposed course is designed to explore site-specific practice and its relation to process, research and experimentation. Casting aside the more conventional definition of intervention from the 'outside', site-specific practice today is a more complex engagement of generating a public sphere through different models of collective engagement whether of relationalism or social dialogue. The intensive programme opens up possibilities of conceptualizing and making through the process of research, reading and experimenting with mediums through collaborations and exchanges.

The three modules led by the educators will explore different perspectives, understandings, and approaches to working on and around the idea of the site. These would include looking at process-oriented strategies, tracing encounters with a site as a contested entity, and engaging with notions of interdisciplinarity and its intersections with contemporary mobilisations in site-specific practices today.

To know more about the modules and the educators, click here.

Like the previous two editions conducted in 2017 and 2018, this third edition of the course is also directed at giving students insights into how artists turn to the city into an extended studio, mining various resources, individuals and forming their own support structures. The emphasis through all the modules will remain on exercises and explorations carried out by the participants.

Objective: This course will not merely explore the technical skills devised by the respective mentors/artists, but will also aim to create an immersive environment of learning and peer sharing, encouraging engagements with larger conceptual questions these practices throw up. There will be additional sessions with invited guest practitioners.

Open Day: The sessions are designed such that the outcome of each of the sessions leads toward the making of a display. To culminate the process, there will be an Open Day at the end of the work-period to share and discuss the works and ideas generated by the participants.

Eligibility: We are seeking applications from young artists who can devote uninterrupted time for participation in this course and whose practices have a strong location or site-based orientation. Given the duration, we prefer people who are not presently enrolled in any undergraduate or postgraduate programmes.

APPLICATION PROCESS

To apply, please send the following material to info@ficart.org, with the subject line,
'FICA SAF Course 2019'

1. Samples of your work in PDF format with a special focus on works that explore site-based orientation.

2. A short statement (300 words) about why you would like to be part of such a programme.
3. A recent CV

For Serendipity Arts Foundation and FICA, the course has been an invaluable experience in terms of building a curriculum from the inputs of practicing artists and to provide the group of young practitioners a chance to explore ideas, techniques and mediums that they would have not had access to within the formal art college programmes. It has been a very rich set of inputs the group has received and we really look forward to seeing how these young practitioners take these forward in their own bodies of practice.

Serendipity Arts Foundation (SAF) is an arts and cultural development trust created to encourage and support the arts as a significant contributor to civil society. SAT aims to promote new creative strategies, artistic interventions, and cultural partnerships which are responsive and seek to address the social, cultural and environmental milieu. Committed to innovation, SAT intends to support, promote and create platforms for innovation and creativity providing the wider public with a unique cultural and historical source of modern contemporary art and culture. SAT programs are designed and initiated through innovative collaborations with partners across a multitude of fields, each intervention created using the arts to impact education, social initiatives, community development programmes, explore interdisciplinarity between the arts, and to better understand the shared histories of the sub-continent.

The proposed five-week long workshop is designed for young artists who are looking to explore site-specific practice and its relation to process, research and experimentation. Casting aside the more conventional definition of intervention from the 'outside', the course will encourage participants to reflect on complex engagements in site-specific practices today, that generate a public sphere through different models of collective engagement whether of relationalism or social dialogue. The intensive programme will open up possibilities of conceptualizing and making through the process of research, reading and experimenting with mediums through collaborations and exchanges. The course starts 10 September 2019 and will continue until October 10, 2019 following which there will be an open day display by the participants. The venue of the course will be Serendipity Arts Trust, C 340, Defence Colony, New Delhi 110024.

As part of this course, you will be providing a module titled Site-specific Art: Co-habiting Differences between September 22 to September 28, 2019, Monday to Friday, 10 am to 5 pm. These could also include evening sessions or guest lectures as well as field visits.

This module on site-specific art practice will engage with the notion of site as contested entity of multi-layered, nomadic traits of live-in and move-in relationships that determine the identity of a site. It will explore notions of self-determination, de-territorialization that a site constantly encounters and the reciprocal performative relationship that is inherent in the practice of a site.

2. Educator Engagements

The educator has agreed to participate in the course titled ON-SITE: A Workshop exploring process, dialogue and experimentation.

Subject: Proposed exhibition on the Jallianwala Bagh Massacre and Rabindranath Tagore's response

Dear Ms Dutta Gupta and Mr Ghosh,

We take pleasure in informing you that your proposal to curate and mount an exhibition in the Victoria Memorial Hall (and possibly elsewhere) to commemorate the centenary of the Jallianwala Bagh Massacre of 1919 and Rabindranath Tagore's response to it has now been approved by the Ministry of Culture. The proposed budget submitted by you, too, has been approved, and 75 per cent of the funds are soon to be released. We attach a copy of the Ministry's correspondence to its Pay and Accounts unit on this matter.

In view of this, we would take this opportunity to please start this work at your earliest convenience, so that this very interesting exhibition can be organized here and in other museums of India. We appreciate the fact that there is hardly any time left for the inauguration of the exhibition to coincide with the actual centenary of the massacre, but we would still be very grateful if a revised but expeditious timeline may be prepared for this.

With thanks and warm regards,

Yours sincerely,

Jayanta Sengupta
Secretary and Curator

Back To Main Page

Acknowledgement

We express our sincere thanks to National Diary Development Board, Siliguri, West Bengal and District Milk Unions of West Midnapore, North 24 Parganas and Nadia for entrusting us to conduct the study in the interest of the organization and management of milk unions by the milk producers. They always provided to us with all support as and when required. The intention of this study is to identify the best practices in DCS societies to enable NDDB and the members of the milk unions to strategize the organizations and management of milk unions.

The team is deeply indebted to employees of milk unions for giving an opportunity to work with them. They helped us to communicate with the DCS as well as Milk Producers and contributed immensely in conducting the study successfully.

We made our best effort to find the actual picture of the management of Diary Cooperative Societies and its benefit to the Milk Producers through this research study which is aimed at identifying the best practices and possible replication of the same.

This study would have not been conducted without the plan, execution with encouragement and support from Professor Prasanta Kumar Ghosh, Head, Department of Social Work, Visva-Bharati. Dear Dr Ross

I am pleased to inform you that application BB/S011439/1 – 'BEFWAM-BIOENERGY, FERTILISER AND CLEAN WATER FROM INVASIVE AQUATIC MACROPHYTES' submitted to the 18IBBEDW Initiative has been successful. We are currently in the process of preparing the grants for announcement.

You must not commit any expenditure against the project until you have received the formal announcement documentation – this is the announcement documentation sent by UKSBS which includes the grant terms and conditions. Once you have received the announcement documentation and accepted the grant, you can begin recruitment (if required) and subsequently charge these recruitment costs to the grant once it starts. In general, a grant is deemed to have started when staff costs are first incurred. It may be the case that cuts have been applied by the Panel where insufficient justification was given, and as such details of the final award amount will not be known until the announcement documents have been prepared. Any costs incurred by you prior to the announcement date will be ineligible.

We will be working through the announcement process as quickly as possible. However, it will take us a few weeks to complete this process for all grants to be announced. Your patience during this time is very much appreciated.

Feedback will be provided to all applicants. This will be provided within three months of this email.

Please note that during the announcement process you will receive automated emails from UKSBS. If you require any further information, please email ibbedw@bbsrc.ukri.org

1. Advanced Techniques of Analysis in Khyal Performance 2015-2016

Durham University

Department of Music

Shaped by the past, creating the future

10 March 2016

To whom it may concern

Dr Ranjani Ramachandran visited the Music Department of Durham University, UK, from 17 February 2016 until 10 March 2016 with the support of a Charles Wallace India Trust scholarship. This visit gave me and colleague Prof. Martin Clayton the opportunity to further develop our collaboration with Dr Ramachandran in the study of khyal; our exchange and dialogue on our respective analytical methods culminated in a joint research seminar delivered on 8 March 2016 (title: "Analysing North Indian khyal performance") as part of the Music Department Guest Lectures Series, in which we presented the results' of Ranjani's work in Durham and the preliminary findings of the collaborative research we intend to pursue in the future.

As part of her research visit, Ranjani Ramachandran also performed on 23 February 2016 in a public recital as part of the Durham University "MUSICON" professional concert series: this performance – which feeds directly into our research collaboration – was enthusiastically received by participants and contributed to positively increase the visibility of North Indian classical music among audiences in the North East of England.

I also invited Dr Ramachandran to deliver a guest lecture on 29 February 2016 as part of the department level-3 undergraduate module "The Music of India": Ranjani engaged students in a highly stimulating dialogue which enriched the module and their learning experience in a unique way. Dr Ramachandran's interaction with our students, however, went beyond this: one particular example concerned an interview that she gave to a final year student writing a dissertation on vocal techniques – precious help much appreciated by us as well as the student.

In general, Dr Ranjani Ramachandran has greatly contributed to the Music Department's research environment throughout her stay in Durham, nourishing intellectual exchange both at formal research and didactic events and, informally, on a number of occasions.

It was a great pleasure to have Dr Ramachandran as visiting fellow at the Music Department, and we hope we will have another opportunity to welcome her in Durham again in the future.

2. Khyal: Music and Imagination (2016-2017)

9 March 2016

To whom it may concern

This is to confirm that Dr Ranjani Ramachandran has been involved in the "Khyal: Music and Imagination" project, based at Durham University, UK, and supported by the UK Arts and Humanities Research Council (AHRC).

The aim of this project – which started on 1 January 2016 and will run until 30 November 2016, and of which I am the Principal Investigator – is to develop a number of artistic and public engagement activities. One of its main foci involves collaborations between khyal singers and visual artists in the development of original artwork based on the singers' own performances. As part of this work, Dr Ramachandran participated in project group meetings which took place in Durham on 1-3 March 2016; in addition to this, she will be consulted by one visual artist throughout the process of creation of an original work of art.

It is a pleasure to have Ranjani as part of the project team and her contribution to debate and development of ideas has been highly valued by all fellow project participants.

6. Methodology and Work Plan (Max. 250 words):

i. State the methodology in a sequence of clearly defined steps leading to achievement of the stated objectives

The project is divided into six main workpackages (WP) are:

WP1: System Specification, Component level Modelling (Lead: VBU & All)

This work package will provide detailed specifications, requirements for all subsystems and computer simulations for the individual components of the integrated system.

WP2: Advances and Development of Concentrating Photovoltaic System (Lead: HWU, IITM)

A new reflective based CPV system of CR of 500× will be developed by using a single sheet of reflective material. The special radial receiver and the acceptance angle of the system of 1.0º will be employed to reduce its optical mismatch and improve efficiency to >37%.

WP3: Development of medium sized modular biomass/waste AD system (Lead: UoL, VBU)

A 15kWth anaerobic digestion reactor will be developed through comprehensive CFD modelling and experimental investigations.

WP4: Hydrogen generation and storage from Biomass and CPV system (Lead: UoN, IITB)

This task will design and optimize a hydrogen storage system which uses 30% less electrical power to run. This will be realized through reducing parasitic losses.

WP5: Integration of Biomass-CPV system and development of a stand-alone rural power system for improving rural energy supply (Lead: IITM, HWU)

Various components and sub-components will be integrated into a complete system, and early testing for faults will be performed.

Part II - Technical Details

1. I. Statement of the problem

Given the threat posed by global warming it is widely accepted that the reliance on fossil fuels for our energy need must decrease rapidly. To tackle the global threat and self dependency on fossil fuels, renewable energy such as solar, wind, wave and biomass gives the pathways to reduce the overall CO_2 emissions to the atmosphere. This project addresses the issues related to integrated solar photovoltaic system - converting incoming solar energy into electricity and biomass power technologies - generation of electrical power from waste materials, for rural electrification.

This project seeks to develop a new class of solar photovoltaic technologies - Concentrating Photovoltaic (CPV) to integrate with Biomass power generation as a backup source and develop high efficiency hydrogen generation and storage from the integrated systems. The integrated system will be installed at Uttar Sehalai Tribal Hamlet, located in a remote village, 200km north-west of Calcutta for rural electrification with key focuses on satellite based remote monitoring technologies. The village is comprised of 64 households and has a population of approximately 400. It is located very close to Visva-Bharati University, Santiniketan (a probable World Heritage Site).

II. Technology gaps & Suggested solution (150 words):

(Describe how the proposal will lead to a novel and effective solution, based on a scientifically and technically sound concept and keeping in view the user needs and local availability of resources)

This project will develop an integrated solutions for renewable energy technologies by combining the solar photovoltaic and biomass to build up an autonomous power supply system suitable for remote applications. The solar power will be converted by high efficiency concentrating photovoltaic system (CPV). The electrical conversion efficiency of such system will be enhanced by utilizing single sheet reflectors, minimizing optical losses and developing nano-structured silicon based receiver system. An anaerobic digester will also be developed for utilizing locally available biomass resources such that the electricity will be provided during the unavailability of solar energy. In addition, metal hydride based material will be examined for enhancing performance efficiency of hydrogen storage. Hydrogen will be generated during the peak solar hour and stored in newly developed metal hydride based materials. Such methods will ensure to minimize parasitic losses enhancing overall conversion efficiencies.

2. Review of Status - (100 words): Are you aware of any other initiative related to proposed activities to solve this problem? What were the outcomes?

(Mention importance of the project in context of the current status, and demonstrate how the project will progress beyond the "state-of-art" or the best initiative tried by others in providing new innovative technological solution to the identified problem and user needs)

Several systems have been developed for the Anarobic digester in India and different types of CPV systems have been reported worldwide. CPV system can be reflective type such as developed by Zeneth Solar, Solfocus and Arzues based CP technology, and examples of refractive type CPV technologies are Amonix, Emcore, and Soitec. However, CPV research in India is very limited, mainly reported CPV systems are in low concentration based. In India, reported CPV system's efficiencies are less than 10% and worldwide, highest CPV system of 32% has been reported. Medium sized CPV systems (~1-2m^2) are yet to be reported in scientific journals.

Dear Dr Sinha,

This is with reference to your India Russia project which was considered by our PAC last week for financial support.

PAC has recommended DST support as following:

PAC considered recommending funding support from DST for 2 years. PAC recommended Funding support from DS as Consumable : Rs. 25 Lakh (12 Lakh for Vishwa Bharati; 8 lakh for JNC and 5 lakh for IACS); Manpower : 3 JRF (One for each group); Contingency : Rs. 50,000 per year for each three groups; Exchange Visits 6 per year (2 visits for each group each year. One visit per year should be availed by student from each group).

For processing with our finance, we would require detailed justification / elaboration of your requirement under the budget head consumables.

Also please note that DST would make one grant to Visva Bharati and you may further distribute it to other participating institutes.

I hope you have already sent us detailed security check list signed by you and your institute and bank details for making remittance.

GUIDELINES FOR SENIOR RESEARCH FELLOWS AND RESEARCH ASSOCIATES WORKING IN THE ICAR SCHEMES

1. BACKGROUND

In order to address the emerging challenges of agricultural research and education, the ICAR supports specific time-bound schemes/projects. The schemes/projects generally have provisions for time-bound/non-regular/ contractual engagement of manpower, contingencies and limited need-based travelling allowance (TA), besides other specifically needed provisions for a particular scheme/project. In supersession of all previous guidelines, the following guidelines are formulated to regulate all aspects relating to engagement, emoluments and terms and conditions of Senior Research Fellows and Research Associates working in ICAR schemes.

2. NOMENCLATURE

The human resource engaged will be called "ICAR–SRF/RA Working in the ICAR Schemes" and will stand apart from engagement in all other schemes.

3. ELIGIBILITY

RESEARCH ASSOCIATES (RAs)

3.1. With Doctoral degree: Ph.D. degree in the relevant subject.

3.2. With Master's Degree : Master's degree in the relevant subject with 1st Division or 60% marks or equivalent overall grade point average with at least two years of research experience as evidenced from Fellowship/ Associateship / Training/ other engagements. The manpower may comprise of two categories viz. the Senior Research Fellows (SRFs) and Research Associates (RAs). The manpower engaged/working in the Schemes shall be on time-bound and contractual engagement of non-regular nature for specified duration not exceeding the duration of the scheme. The co-terminus nature of the engagement will be the over-riding principle. Notwithstanding the duration of the scheme(s), engagement of SRFs/RAs can be discontinued owing to administrative reasons at any time by issue of one month's notice or one month's emoluments in lieu thereof. The SRFs/RAs may also leave the assignment, on their own volition, by giving one month's notice. At the end of the contracted period, the SRFs/ RAs will have no right to claim any employment or engagement in the ICAR.

5. SELECTION PROCEDURE

The selection of the SRFs/RAs would be made by giving wide publicity and indicating the duration and time-bound co-terminus nature of the engagement through an appropriate medium/media as deemed fit by the Principal Investigator(PI)/Head of the Institute where the Scheme is to operate. Since the engagement of the manpower in the Scheme is purely time-bound and non-regular and also not against any sanctioned vacancy/cadre strength/post/ position, the service provisions for regular posts including reservations will not be applicable to these engagements. The selection will be made on co-terminus b of the respective scheme not exceeding the duration/period or a part of period of the scheme. The SRFs/RAs who have earlier worked in the I schemes may be given preference for engagement subject to their suitability.

The candidates called for the interview will not be entitled for any TA/DA/fare

The competent authority may decide the mode of interview, which may incl walk-in or telephonic interview.

6. SELECTION COMMITTEE

For SRF - 35 years for men
- 40 years for women

For RAs - 40 years for men
- 45 years for women

The selected candidates will be medically examined and an engagement offer wil be issued which will be followed by the joining report copies of which may be sen to the concerned Drawing & Disbursing Officer (DDO), Finance & Accounts Office and the Nodal/Controlling Officer of the Scheme such as Assistant Director General (ADG) concerned. The fee for medical examination will be reimbursed by the Institute /SAU concerned.

8. DISCIPLINE

Since the SRFs/ RAs working in the Schemes may handle sophisticated equipments, research materials etc., they are required to show satisfactory performance of duties and maintain discipline as per the code of conduct and prevailing rules of the ICAR/AU/Institute concerned. Non-maintenance of the discipline or failure to perform the duties assigned will make the SRFs/RAs liable for termination.

9. EMOLUMENTS

The rates of monthly emoluments will be as prescribed by the Council from time to time. SRFs/ RAs who have not been provided hostel accommodation or concessional accommodation by the Institute/ AU will be entitled to a house rent allowance, to be determined by the Council/ AU which in no case would exceed the rates payable to central government employees in the area. In addition, SRFs/RAs will be charged hostel charges as per the norms/rules of the Institute. The reimbursement of hostel fee is not admissible.

Section-B: Scientific and Technical Progress

B1. Progress made against the Approved Objectives, Targets & Timelines during the Reporting Period (1000-1500 words for interim reports; 2500-3500 words for final report; data must be included in the form of up to 3 figures and/or tables for interim reports; up to 7 figures and/or tables for final reports):

In order to share expertise and to build good cohesion among researchers, during the project tenure research scholars from RGU, Itanagar visited collaborators' laboratory at Visva-Bharati twice and Dr. Sudipta Maitra, Department of Zoology, Visva-Bharati (PI, Collaborating Institute) along with research scholars visited the RGU, Itanagar three times. However, even after repeated attempts and field trips by the researchers from both the Universities only 14 adult specimens of Amblyceps apangi and 41 live specimens of Olyra longicaudata (17 adults and 24 juveniles) could be sent to collaborators at Visva-bharati University, Santiniketan. None of the above catfishes were in sexually mature condition during their capture from natural habitat and transportation to VBU. Non-availability of sexually mature males and gravid females of the catfishes in sufficient number coupled with delayed receipt of second installment (received after two year seven months) and non-receipt of the third installment till to date, adversely affected the work schedule, research progress and outcome of the present project in general, and studies and reproductive parameters and captive breeding in particular.

In spite of such impediments, to fulfill the targets of component activities against each objective, all the standard and recommended methodologies were adopted for studying population attributes, habitat parameters and breeding biology of the fishes time to time.

OBJECTIVE 1: Quantitative assessment of population status and habitat parameters of torrential catfish Olyra longicaudata and Amblyceps apangi in-situ (at RGU, Itanagar, Arunachal Pradesh)

1.1 Habitat ecology

Habitat predilection of Olyra longicaudata and Amblyceps apangi was studied systematically in a mountain stream of Dengka village of papumpare district Arunachal Pradesh, India. The enumeration of habitat parameters in-situ revealed that both the catfish have the specialized and distinguishable habitat fondness in lotic system (Fig. 1a and Table 1a). These fishes are is basically bottom dweller and prefers the places with rocky stream beds, devoid of clay and detrital deposits (Fig. 1b), surrounding areas enriched with larval and aquatic insects, crustaceans, annelids, molluscs etc (Table 1b, Fig. 1d). These catfish species prefer shallower and clear running water but cool, soft, slightly alkaline with high level of dissolved oxygen (Table 1c, Fig. 1e) and under a good cover of riparian vegetation (Fig. 1c). However, relative distinguishing features of habitat preference indicated that Olyra prefers mildly cooler and mostly shaded area under the cover of riparian vegetation and slightly flowing water compared to that of Amblyceps that likes torrential streams flow with cooler water. Therefore, captive rearing of such wild candidate species demands suitable simulation of habitat in-situ to provide stress free rearing infrastructure.

1.2 Population status

The studies on population status of Olyra longicaudata showed a scattered distribution mostly in the entire foothills streams of the state. On the other hand, population of Amblyceps apangi showed high distributional variability and very infrequent availability in most of the areas covering primarily middle (600-1200m asl) to foot hills zone, in general with a very low abundances. The population properties of the species showed a dismal picture with adult count going remarkably down (Fig. 1f & 1g). However, the random streams and river sampling at different sites in the state of Arunachal Pradesh as a whole showed very scanty population of Amblyceps apangi in general.

1.3. Size frequency & Sex ratio

The sampling of fishes directly from the habitat and morphometic and meristic accounts provided the clues for assessing in-situ grouping of different size groups i.e length & weight of sampled fishes of both the species. Their pattern of abundances (%) in natural habitat indicated that the adults were less in abundance compared to juveniles. In both the species males are longer (either total length or standard length) than the females in general. Moreover, ripe males or females of both species were very scanty in abundances compared to other size groups indicating a negative population attributes. During breeding seasons, the sexual dimorphism is very prominent in both the species showing broader belly in females and prominent genital papilla in males. Further, fecundity estimated from the ripe Amblyceps and Olyra females ranged respectively in 45-168 eggs/fish and 110-278 eggs/fish which are very less compared to other species of catfishes in general. The male female ratio also showed fluctuating values for different populations in different sites, however in most cases both the species exhibited very low counts of male samples during collection.

OBJECTIVE 2: Initiation, development and improvement of captive breeding procedures (at Rajiv Gandhi University, Itanagar)

Since no data was available with the present researchers on the above parameters, it was first necessary to identify the seasonal cycle of reproduction concomitant with kinetics of gonadal growth, recrudescence and maturation

2.1. Preliminary study on morphology, anatomy and annual gonadal growth pattern

Data shown in Fig. 2a-2e demonstrate the morphometric variations, anatomical peculiarities, sexual dimorphism and anatomy of gonads in male and female Amblyceps apangi and Olyra longicaudata.

Next we studied the variation in gonadosomatic index, GSI in % [(gonad weight/body weight) x 100] of male and female of both the catfish species throughout the year (Fig. 2f) alongwith the condition of gametogenesis through histological observation of ovary and testis (Fig. 2g to 2i). The results show that both A. apangi and O. longicaudata reached highest gonadal growth during June-August (possibly the spawning season). Further, the histological observation revealed that during this time ovaries were filled with full grown yolky oocytes (Fig. 2g & 2h) and sign of active spermatogenesis and spermeogenesis was also evident from T.S. of seminiferous tubules (Fig. 2i).

On the basis above observation induced breeding of both the catfish species were attempted during July.

2.2 Trials for induced breeding

The endangered catfish (Olyra longicaudata McClelland 1842; Amblyceps apangi, Nath & Dey 1989) in captivity rarely ovulate either spontaneously or even by environmental manipulation as observed in last two years by the collaborating group from Rajiv Gandh University, Itanagar. Further, the restricted occurrences and abundances of their population in nature (Nath and Dey 2000b; Tamang et al 2007) indicate the fluctuating reproductive fitness even in their wild habitat (Vrijenhoek 1998; Ghosh and Punniah 2001).

Neither of these two threatened catfish species spawns spontaneously in captivity and a thorough investigation of their habitat ecology revealed a sharp fall in their population size in the wild.

Mature specimens of O. longicaudata and Amblyceps apangi were collected from their natural habitat during June-July, acclimatized to the laboratory condition for at least seven days, breeding pairs were selected through physical examination and released into nylon happas fitted in glass aquaria.

Specifically, two commercial formulations each consisting of a synthetic, shorter version of salmon gonadotropin releasing hormone (sGnRHa) and domperidone, a dopamine antagonist were tested. Moreover, in some cases human chorionic gonadotropin (hCG) was also tried to obtain spawning success.

Mature specimens (both male and female at the ratio of 1 female per two males) of O. longicaudata and A. apangi were injected i.m. (Fig. 2j) with the help of sterile insulin syringe fitted with 34xG needle at the dose level of 0.5 µl/g (Ovaprim) or 0.2µl/g (GONOPRO) or 0.25 IU/g (hCG) body weight at 18:00 hrs and released into cloth/nylon hapa fitted in glass tank equipped with pumps for constant aeration and recirculation of water (mean temperature 26 ± 2^{o}C).

The data of the present study reveals that even after 14-16 h of hormonal stimulation, both the catfish species failed to spawn on their own. As a result it was decided to express the eggs manually (i.e. to "strip") from the female fish. As shown in Fig. 2k, ovulated eggs oozed out on slight pressure by thumb on the abdomen of female Amblyceps apangi and were collected in the plastic bowl. Testes specimens from injected males were dissected out, cut into small pieces, minced and mixed thoroughly with the ovulated eggs for 60-90 seconds and released in polypropelene tumblers containing rain water (mean temperature 26 ± 2^{o}C) for further development.

However, the sexually mature specimens of Olyra longicaudata, especially the females, responded poorly to hormonal manipulation. Although the males produced copious milt containing mature sperms, the ovaries in ovaprim/gonopro/hCG-treated females revealed presence of eggs which failed to ovulate even after administering highest admissible doses. This may primarily be either due to sub-optimum ovarian growth or stress in handling of these highly susceptible wild fishes or due to poor water quality and other parameters.

The present trial for induced breeding showed that while Amblyceps apangi treated with synthetic hormone gave satisfactory results and spawned successfully and fertilization rate was as high as 91% was recorded. Further nearly 81% of the fertilized egg hatched after 48 h and out of the total hatched, 47% reached the pelagic swim-up stage (Fig. 2L). On the background of expert recommendation during mid-term evaluation of the project, these fishes were released into ponds, but failed to survive in stagnant waters. Therefore the seeds have been released either into nearby streams or being maintained in cemented tanks equipped with continuous flow of water to observe their survival rate and growth performance periodically.

OBJECTIVE 3: Induction of meiotic maturation of immature oocytes of Olyra longicaudata and Amblyceps apangi (at Visva-Bharati, Santiniketan and at Rajiv Gandhi University, Itanagar))

Oocytes of oviparous vertebrates grow within ovarian follicles before ready to be fertilized. Full grown oocytes remain arrested at the boundary of G2-M1 of the first meiotic prophase. Prior to ovulation, surge in pituitary gonadotropin (LH) triggers follicle cells to secrete MIS, which is 17α, 20β-dihdroxy-4-pregnen-3-one (17α, 20β-DHP) in most fish. MIS action at the oocyte surface promotes resumption of final oocyte maturation and ovulation, pre-requisite for successful fertilization.

In order to examine the meiotic competence, fully-formed post-vitellogenic oocytes harvested from the gravid females of O. longicaudata and A. apangi were incubated either in absence (Control) or presence of exogenous hormonal stimulation, e.g. human chorionic gonadotropin (hCG) and 17α, 20β dihydroxyprogesterone (17α, 20β-DHP), the natural maturation inducing steroid (MIS) in teleosts, in vitro.

3.1. Olyra longicaudata: Development of suitable culture condition and induction of oocyte maturation in vitro

Ovaries from gravid females were dissected out in Leibovitz L-15 medium, follicles separated by gentle flashing and incubated in presence or absence of exogenous hormones/drugs for indicated time intervals at 23 ±2 ^{0}C with gentle shaking (40 rpm). Data of the present study demonstrate that when stimulated with either hCG or MIH the ability to undergo germinal vesicle break-down (GVBD) varied considerably as a function of gonadosomatic index (GSI) of the donor female fish. As shown in Fig. 3a, during spawning season (July), hCG/MIS stimulation promotes GVBD in nearly 30±2.29% of the ovarian follicles harvested from females reared in captivity (GSI: 12.345±1.13%) at 16 h of incubation. On the contrary, gravid females collected from their natural habitat during the same time (i.e. in July) revealed a higher level of gonadal growth (GSI: 19.11±2.43%) as well as meiotic competence since 81.5±4.76% of the oocytes underwent GVBD within 12 h of MIH stimulation (Fig.3b). This suggests though it was possible to obtain significant gonadal growth in fishes reared in the laboratory conditions, the maturational competence of the oocytes harvested from females in their natural habitat was higher. One possible explanation to this may be that compared to their natural habitat, fishes were more stressed in the laboratory condition.

3.2 Amblyceps apangi: Development of suitable culture condition and induction of oocyte maturation *in vitro

Rearing of Amblyceps apangi in laboratory condition yielded poor response and none of the fishes underwent gonadal growth and failed to attain sexual maturity. Therefore, mature specimens (both male and females) were collected from their natural habitat (please see map; Fig.) during the middle of July, when females could be easily identified due to swollen abdomen and gravid ovaries. Fishes were fed ad libitum with commercial food pellet (Tetrabits) and acclimated to laboratory condition for seven days prior to their use in experiments.

Ovaries from gravid female Amblyceps apangi (mean GSI: 21.1±2.17) were dissected out (Fig. 3c) and placed immediately in medium M199. Intact ovarian follicles were incubated in the same medium either in presence of exogenous hormones (hCG/MIS) or not. Post-incubated oocytes were placed in clearing solution (ethanol:formaldehyde:acetic acid 3:6:1) and %GVBD was scored at indicated time intervals using an inverted microscope fitted with phase-contrast optics (Dewinter, Italy).

Results of the present study show that compared to un-stimulated control, incubation with exogenous hormones promoted final oocyte maturation in a duration-dependent manner and stimulation with either MIS (1 µg/ml) or hCG (10 I.U./ml) promoted GVBD response in 89.65±3.9% and 81.48±4.12% of oocytes respectively at 24 h of incubation (Fig. 3d, left panel). Moreover, representative photomicrographs (light microscopic data) reveal that immature oocytes with centrally placed intact germinal vesicle (prophase I arrest) underwent nuclear membrane dissolution due to hCG/MIS stimulation (Fig. 3D, right panel).

Based on above, it may reasonably be concluded that we could rear O. longicaudata to sexual maturity, albeit in low amount, in the laboratory condition and could set up conditions conducive for successful stimulation of oocytes to undergo meiotic G2-M1 transition in vitro. Though, long term maintenance of adult specimens of A. apangi in the laboratory was largely unsuccessful, full grown follicles harvested from gravid females collected from their wild habitat responded well and underwent meiosis resumption in > 90% of oocytes in vitro.

Conditions adopted, process standardized and the data obtained may provide valuable insights in formulating the protocol of in-vito fertilization (IVF) and ex situ conservation strategies in large scale for these highly endangered fish species in future.

OBJECTIVE 4: Molecular mechanism of regulation of oocyte maturation in Olyra longicaudata and Amblyceps apangi (At Visva-Bharati, Santiniketan)

Meiotic maturation is the process responsible for development of immature oocytes into fertilizable gametes which is a prerequisite for successful fertilization. Maturation inducing hormone (MIH) relieves oocytes from this arrest and progesterone has been shown to be MIH in frogs and higher vertebrates, while in fish 17α, 20β-dihydroxy 4-pregnen-3-one or 17α, 20β-DP is the MIH. MIH promotes the formation of MPF in germ cells, whose activity can be attributed to dimeric protein kinase, cyclin B-cdc2.

4.1. Effect of protein synthesis inhibitors on hCG and MIH induced oocyte maturation

Pre-incubation with transcriptional blocker, actinomycin D (actD) prevents hCG, but not MIH-induced oocyte maturation to the level comparable to unstimulated control in O. longicaudata (~14.26%) and A. apangi oocytes (10.73%). Conversely, translational inhibition by priming with Chx abrogated MIH and hCG-induced final oocyte maturation completely in both the catfish species suggesting differential regulation by transcription and translational activation. While de novo synthesis of proteins may require both transcription and translational activation in case of hCG regulation of G2-M1 transition, translational activation may be the pre-requisite and essential for MIH action (Table 4a).

4.2. Regulation of MPF activation

In order to explore further the molecular mechanism behind regulation of meiotic G2-M1 transition in fully grown follicle-enclosed oocytes from O. longicaudata and A. apangi, we investigated the pattern of MPF activation either through immunoblot analysis using anti-cyclin B and anti-phospho-p34 cdc2 (Thr 161) antisera or by assaying histone H1 kinase activation in the oocyte extract. As shown in Fig. 4C, while total protein did not vary significantly (lower panel), compared to un-stimulated control, hCG or MIH induction of A. apangi immature ovarian follicles could promote p34cdc2 phosphorylation (activation) (upper panel) providing evidence behind MPF activation. Further, sharp increase ^{32}P-histone H1 kinase activation in MIH-treated oocytes (Fig. 4D) in vitro at 24 h of incubation suggest MPF activation. Moreover, in O. longicaudata oocytes upregulation of cyclin B and p-p34cdc2 (Thr161) corroborates well with GVBD data in vitro. There was a robust increase in de novo synthesis of cyclin B and p34cdc2 activation (phosphorylation) due to MIH stimulation confirming MPF activation (Fig. 3C).

4.3. cAMP/PKA regulation of meiotic G2-M1 transition in catfish follicle-enclosed oocytes

Available information indicates that high cAMP or cAMP-dependent protein kinase (PKA) play pivotal role in maintaining prophase arrest in teleosts and meiotic G2-M1 transition involves down-regulation of PKA activity (Khan and Maitra, 2013; Maitra et al., 2014).

Data of the present study demonstrate that forced elevation of intra-oocyte cAMP by priming with various cAMP regulators, e.g. cell-permeable non-hydrolysable dibutyryl cAMP (dbcAMP), or phophodiesterase inhibitor, IBMX or abenylyl cyclase activator, forskolin (all from Sigma-Aldrich, India) could completely attenuate 17α, 20β-DHP induced resumption of meiotic maturation of full grown oocytes in vitro.

Conversely priming of intact gravid follicle enclosed oocytes with either adenylyl cyclase inhibitor SQ 22,536 (sigma, India) cAMP-dependent protein kinase inhibitors (PKA) inhibitor, H89 (Sigma, India) could promote meiotic maturation even without maturational steroid or any other hormonal stimulation.

In order to explore potential involvement of cAMP-dependent signaling cascade further, gravid oocytes from both the catfish species were micro-injected with either PKA inhibitor peptide, PKI-(6-22)-amide (20 nl/oocyte, stock 6 lM, Upstate-Millipore) or anti-PKA antibody (anti-PKAcat (C-20, sc-903, Santa Cruz, USA), diluted 1:50 in PBS; 20 nl/oocyte, using Femtojet Express and Injectman NI2 fitted to Femtotip (internal diameter: 0.5 μm) (Eppendorf, Germany) under a stereo microscope (Zoomster VI, Dewinter Optical Inc.). Interestingly, PKA inhibition by either PKI or anti-PKA could trigger a robust increase in % GVBD compared to vehicle (medium only)-injected control oocytes.

Since active PKA is always phosphorylated on its catalytic loop, we examined the effect of hCG/MIH on intra-oocyte PKA activity indirectly by immunoblot analysis through PKA phosphorylation using phospho-specific antibodies (p-PKAc; Santa Cruz Biotech), that specifically recognizes the active form of PKA. Oocyte extract from A. apangi did not show good cross-reaction with anti-p-PKA (data not shown). the Though total protein did not vary significantly, stimulation of O. longicaudata oocytes with either hCG/MIH could promote phospho-PKAc dephosphorylation/inactivation (upper panel, Fig. 4b).

Based on above observations, it appears highly probable that elevated cAMP and active PKA potentially acts as a negative regulator of final oocyte maturation and plays a pivotal role in maintaining prophase I arrest in growing oocytes of O. longicaudata and A. apangi. Further downregulation of cAMP or PKA is essential and sufficient to promote meiotic G2-M1 transition even without hormonal stimulation.

4.4. Effect of MIH on MAPK (p-ERK1/2) activation

Activation of mitogen-activated protein kinases, MAPK3/1 (also known as extracellular signal-related kinases, ERK1/2) comprising a family of ubiquitously expressed serine/threonine kinases, have been reported earlier during steroid-induced meiotic maturation. Though the role of MAPK as a cytostatic factor to suppress DNA replication between meiosis I and II is well documented, species specific differences exist in teleosts.

Data of the present study demonstrate that in full grown O. longicaudata oocytes, stimulation with either MIH or hCG promotes ERK1/2 phosphorylationon (p-ERK1/2) at 16 h of incubation in vitro (lower panel, Fig. 4b). However, priming with MEK inhibitor U0126 failed to block steroid-induced oocyte maturation in either O. longicaudata or A. apangi oocytes in vitro (data not shown).

Although we failed to detect anti-Mos immuno-reactive protein (the MEK kinase in oocytes) in MIH-treated O. longicaudata oocytes, further work is necessary to understand the exact role ERK1/2 activation in catfish oocytes undergoing meiotic maturation due to steroid stimulation.

B2.Summary and Conclusion of the Progress made so far (200 words)

In summary, it can be reported that the objectives of the project have been achieved certainly at the commendable level for the two targeted endangered and lesser known catfishes under study, despite several constraints faced by both of the grantee organizations. The activities have been suffered most extremely because of either delayed fund release (2^{nd} installment) or non-receipt of committed fund allocations (3^{rd} installment) during the project tenure.

The study explored the population status and various population attributes along with habitat ecology of both of these highly endangered cat fishes of the sate for the first time. Besides, the programme has been made the researcher enabled to trace out their reproductive characteristics both in-situ and ex-situ .Taken together, the present data for the first time could demonstrate the molecular mechanisms potentially involved in the regulation of resumption of meiosis in gravid oocytes of the endangered catfish (Olyra longicaudata McClelland 1842; Amblyceps apangi Nath & Dey 1989). Considering the sharp decline in the population size of both the species in their natural environment, the knowledge generated and the protocols standardized out of the present study could be of immense help for developing assisted reproductive technologies, especially in vitro fertilization, rearing and release of laboratory-bred juveniles in their natural habitat. Besides, if successful in large scale, such protocols may be adopted for germplasm conservation of these obscured but ecologically important fish species from North-Eastern states of India.

B3. Details of New leads obtained, if any:

The leads mentioned below as emerged out from this twinning programme would be the leading "knowledge base" for attempting artificial propagation towards development of habitat specific conservation strategies of such endemic and critically endangered fish species.

3.1 The understanding of species specific population attributes, habitat ecology and reproductive biology of both Olyra longicaudata and Amblyceps apangi in their natural habitat are undoubtedly new knowledge base generated from this twining programme for the first time.

3.2 On the standpoint of declining reproductive fitness of Olyra longicaudata and Amblyceps apangi in their natural habitat, standardizing the captive breeding protocol through delineation of molecular events of oocyte maturation for the first time seem to be pioneering in these fishes as well as the important outcome of the programme.

ABSTRACT

This study aims at immunochemical characterization of plasma vitellogenin (VTG), development of an heterlogous VTG ELISA and to relate seasonal variation in plasma VTG and estradiol-17β (E2) levels with ovarian growth (gonadosomatic index, GSI) in Olyra longicaudata (McClelland, 1842), a rare hill-stream catfish endemic to North East India. On native PAGE, plasma from E2-injected male, vitellogenic as well as gravid females, but not untreated male, resolved into two major protein bands. These two proteins stained positive for carbohydrate, lipid and phosphorous, albeit with differential intensity and cross-reacted well with catfish VTG antiserum (a-VTG) suggesting them as putative VTGs in circulation. Ammonium sulphate (50%) fractionation followed by SDS-PAGE analysis of E2-treated male plasma resolved into four protein bands (150–15 kDa), of which two, with molecular mass of 150 and 130 kDa cross-reacted with a-VTG indicating them as VTG monomers. Immunoprecipitation of E2-induced plasma and immunoblot analysis of crude yolk proteins with a-VTG revealed two proteins in each case indicating two forms of VTG, present in circulation, possibly act as yolk precursors. Competitive antigen-capture ELISA developed earlier for catfish, Clarias batrachus VTG (CF-VTG1), revealed parallel binding slopes between dilution curves of plasma from vitellogenic female, E2-treated male and CF-VTG1 standard. Congruent with gradual increase in plasma E2, ovarian weight and appearance of vitellogenic and yolky oocytes, VTG level in circulation increased sharply in May–June, reaching the peak value in July, dropped sharply during August–September and was undetected or negligible in amount during December allowing identification of the ripening, the pre-spawning, the spawning and the quiescent phases respectively.

1. Introduction

Olyra longicaudata, McClelland, 1842 (Teleosti: Bagridae: Olyrinae), also known as Asian fighting catfish or banner tail catfish, is endemic to torrential hill streams of Brahmaputra basin in the North East India, Northern Myanmar and Thailand (Talwar and Jhingran, 1991). Distinguished by small size (110 mm standard length), anguilliform body and greatly enlarged upper lobe of the forked caudal fin, this bagrid catfish (Actinipterygii: Siluriformes) prefers fast water current and a place for hiding in the substratum of rocks and sand. While their restricted occurrences in nature indicate fluctuating reproductive fitness even in the wild, this fish usually spawns during the monsoon months (August–September) when the rainfall is heaviest. However, mature specimens of O. longicaudata, particularly the females, rarely attain sexual maturity in captivity. Though popular as an aquarium species, currently no information is available on vitellogenesis or any other reproductive parameters of this hill stream catfish.

In fishes, as in other oviparous vertebrates, the yolk precursor protein, vitellogenin (VTG), is synthesized in the liver under the influence of gonadotropin-induced ovarian estrogen, primarily estrdiol-17β (E2) and is transported via blood to the ovary. Following its uptake through receptor-mediated endocytosis, VTG undergoes limited proteolytic cleavage to form lipovitellin (Lv), phosvitin (Pv), β′-component and C-terminal peptide which ultimately get deposited in the form of yolk granules or platelets in the growing oocytes (Babin et al., 2007; Hiramatsu et al., 2002a;

- Abstract: Title objective: TGR5 activation by cholic acid, a class of bile acids induce intestinal glucagon-like peptide-1 (GLP-1) release potentiating insulin release. This leads to improved liver and pancreatic function and enhance glucose homeostasis. Aim: To investigate TGR5 agonist property of saponins, which are structural analogue of cholic acid using in silico approach. Materials and Methods: A molecular docking of five saponins (structural analogue of cholic acid, a bile acid) with TGR5 was performed using Autodock vina and compared with cholic acid. Validation of docking experiment was also done by comparing docking scores with experimental data. Results: All the saponins investigated except Curculigol (-6.7 kcal/mol) have higher binding affinity for TGR5 when compared with cholic acid (-7.2 kcal/mol). Charantin ranked highest with -8.9 kcal/mol, gypensapogenin (-8.6 kcal/mol), Diosgenin (-7.8 kcal/mol), arjunolic acid (-7.5 kcal/ mol). Arg 80, Ser 95, Ser 270, Pro 92 and Thr 70 are amino acid residues at the active site are important for saponin binding affinity. A significant correlation (r^2= 0.7) between different data derived from docking calculations and experimental data was revealed. Conclusion: Saponins are a class of phytochemicals that may be potent lead compounds for the treatment of diabetes mellitus but further experimental and clinical confirmation are necessary.

Visualisation of DCP, a nerve agent mimic, in Catfish brain by a simple chemosensor

A chemosensor, 3-aminophenol-based rhodamine conjugate (ARC) has been developed for visualisation of diethylchlorophosphate (DCP), mimic of a chemical warfare agent, in Catfish brain. The simple detection of DCP by "turn-on" fluorescence property of the chemosensor makes it unique for easy and rapid in vivo and in vitro detection of DCP with the detection limit of 5.6 nM.

1995, The terrorist attack on Tokyo subway introduces the whole world with a new threat to mankind- Chemical Warfare Agents (CWAs)[1–3]. The simple organophosphates, present in pesticides eventually become more popular chemical weapon due to its very simple method of manufacturing, availability, and low cost along with its dispensability. Despite of its common use as a pesticide, various analogues of such organophosphates are found to be very potent nerve agent, which irreversibly damage functions of nerve cells. Among all the highly toxic, volatile nerve agents, Sarin (GB), Soman (GD) and Tabun (GA) are of most common. If the nerve agents are being inhaled or absorbed through skin, their reactive phosphate group irreversibly react with the hydroxyl group of cellular acetylcholinesterase, which is responsible for breaking down the acetylcholine neurotransmitter, leads to its inactivation. The fatal consequences are neurological imbalance at cholinergic synapses, failure of several organs, paralysis of central nervous system and rapid death[4,5]. On 4th April 2017, Khan Shaykhun, a city of Syria faced the destructive activities of suspected chemical warfare with nerve agent Sarin[6]. For public safety concern and national security, a reliable, facile and reactive detection method of such nerve agents is of great global interest towards the development of practical 'in field' devices.

Till today, several detection methods, such as- colorimetry[7–10], fluorometry[11–17], interferometry[18], electrochemistry[19–22], surface acoustic wave (SAW) devices[23,24], photoacoustic spectroscopy[25], moleculer imprinting coupled with lanthanide luminescence and fibre optics[26–28], enzymatic assay[29,30], and gas chromatography-mass spectrometry[31] have been explored to detect substantial number of CWAs. But the problem arises when these existing methods show one or more drawbacks such as low response and sensitivity, limited selectivity, non-specificity and non-portability, difficulties in real time detection, false positive readings and operational complexity. The chemosensors mediated detection is an extremely convenient and simple method based on optical outputs such as color change or change in fluorescence intensity after the exposure to the target analytes[32–35]. Chemosensors make such detection method attractive and widely acceptable by fulfilling the key features of a practical sensing system i.e. high selectivity, sensitivity, specificity, portability, ability of real time sensing along with cost effectiveness[36,37]. Implementation of a reliable chemosensor is a highly challenging but it brings a considerable importance for their wide application in medical, environmental and biological field. Generally, diethylchlorophosphate (DCP) is used as mimic of the nerve agent Sarin. DCP is much less toxic than Sarin but its mode of action is similar.

With this stand point in this particular research field, we have described a chemosensor ARC, 3-aminophenol based rhodamine conjugate. This chemosensor is simple and efficient in showing fluorescence signal in presence of DCP in aqueous medium both in in vivo and in vitro systems. There are reports that described recognition of deadly and relevant molecules like DCP and other organophosphates. A comparative assessment of our chemosensor has been provided with that of the published one (Table S1). In our present work with the help of a very simply designed chemosensor we established the detection of DCP in a direct, fast and selective way in living system. Over usage of organophosphate pesticides or use of similar compounds through chemical warfare can essentially disseminate such compound in ecosystem. Hence detection of such compound from contaminated

Gist of the project proposal approved

Title of the project: To elucidate the unique biochemical adaptational strategies that allow two air-breathing catfishes (Clarias batrachus and Heteropneustes fossilis) to survive in ammonia enriched toxic waste

Objectives and activities of the project:

Objective 1: To examine the intrinsic mechanism that catfish develop not only to maintain their life but also to grow reasonably fast under high ambient ammonia

Activity

- Analysis of induction of different amino acid metabolism-related genes under ammonia stress.
- Analysis of induction of non-essential amino acids synthesis utilizing environmental N-source.
- Analysis of induction of protein anabolic pathway utilizing environmental N-source.
- Assessment of growth rates and expression of growth genes under ammonia stress.
- Augmenting newly generated sequence data to already available data and analysis in C. batrachus (magur)

Objective 2: To check the possible expression of a set of adaptive genes and their exclusive finely-tuned mechanistic pathways, which allow them to perfectly adapt high ammonia in their ambiance.

Activity

- Analysis of miRNA as a function of adaptive regulatory mechanisms from liver and brain tissues.
- Investigations on target genes by miRNA and their mechanistic pathways.
- Validation of key miRNA involved in those targeted genes using qRT- PCR
- Profiling of transcripts of adaptive genes and proteins under ammonia stress.
- In vivo functional validation of key regulatory genes with cross-species examinations.

Objective 3: To decipher and characterize the signalling molecules related to adaptation and growth in high nitrogenous waste contents by these catfish.

Activity

- We will try to use SIRT1 and SIRT5 to maintain metabolic requirement for excess protein synthesis because our primary focus is to utilize the excess nitrogenous waste for the synthesis of amino acids and proteins as excess nitrogen is known to stimulate protein synthesis.
- The problem usually is to separate nitrogen from ammonia via the regulatory pathway of SIRT5. The catfishes are expected to perform this shift.
- Expression of metabolic proteins associated in the regulation of excess nitrogen in cell lines.
- SIRT1 and AMPK would be used to generate excess energy currency through mitochondrial biogenesis and bioenergetics.

Give the major expected outputs of the project.

- Revelation of underlying mechanism through which commercially important Indian catfish adapt high ammonia ambiance.
- In finding the clue for positive nitrogen anabolic status that catfish possess, an opportunity for increasing muscle protein yield could be availed.
- Interplay of growth factors and their receptors expected to be different in catfish considering its habitat selection.
- In revealing various regulatory mechanisms, an improvement in catfish yield would be a reasonable expectation.

A Pt(II)-based complex [Pt(DMEEDA)Cl_2], 1 (DMEEDA = N,N-dimethyl-N′-ethylethylenediamine), was synthesized, where DMEEDA acted as the (N,N) bidentate carrier ligand. The diaqua complex [Pt(DMEEDA)$(H_2O)_2$]$(NO_3)_2$, 2, was obtained by the hydrolysis of dichloro complex 1. Further, its substituted complex Pt(DMEEDA)(L-cys), 3, and [Pt(DMEEDA)(N-ac-L-cys)], 4 (where L-cys = L-cysteine and N-ac-L-cys = N-acetyl-L-cysteine), were synthesized with amino acid L-cysteine and its acetyl derivative. The complexes were characterized via different spectroscopic techniques, such as UV-Vis, FT-IR, ^{1}H NMR and ESI-MS. The structure of complex 1 was determined via X-ray diffraction studies to be an orthorhombic crystal system with cell parameters a = 7.9970(2) Å, b = 16.9851(7) Å, c = 16.0460(7) Å and α = 90(°); β = 90(°); γ = 90(°) and space group (pccn). The DNA-binding properties of the complexes were investigated via gel electrophoresis, and DNA-binding constants were obtained from UV-Vis spectroscopic and fluorescence titration methods. Congruent with a significant increase in DNA fragmentation, the growth inhibition potential of the synthesized Pt(II) complexes has been remarkably higher in the hepatocarcinoma cell line (HepG2), as compared to cisplatin. Moreover, these complexes show minimal toxicity to mouse primary hepatocytes and RAW 264.7 cells in vitro.

Introduction

The anticancer activity of cisplatin, [$Pt(NH_3)_2Cl_2$], was serendipitously discovered by B. Rosenberg[1] in 1967 and consequently, it was recognized as an anticancer drug in 1978 by the Food and Drug Administration (FDA), USA. In spite of its anticancer activity, it has various severe side effects,[2,3] such as neurotoxicity, gastrointestinal effects, nephrotoxicity and ototoxicity, which have led different research groups to search new and safer anticancer agents. Next-generation drugs, such as carboplatin,[4–6] nedaplatin,[7] oxaliplatin[8] and lobaplatin[9,10] were synthesized and after long trials, were recognized for the treatment of specific types of cancers but they are not devoid of toxicity.[11,12] Their activity and side effects might be controlled with structural modifications of the corresponding carrier and labile ligand moieties. In general, the cytotoxic properties of Pt(II) complexes depend on carrier (N, N donor) ligands and leaving groups (Cl or O, O/S,O donors, etc.) as well as on the planarity around the Pt(II) centre. The ultimate aim of molecular targeting is for malignant cancerous cell DNA to bind with the Pt(II) complex, which leads to consequent cell death.[13] Anticancer properties are governed by the structure of the complexes and the nature of bonding, which are directly related to the electronic as well as steric factors of the carrier and leaving groups. These factors ultimately govern the Pt(II)–DNA adduct formation via Pt(II)–sulfur chelation by thiol groups containing proteins and peptides.[14] Recently, various research groups have developed alternative strategies for developing new Pt(II)-based drugs with better cellular uptake, enhanced efficacy and reduced drug resistance.[15–21]

To design a novel Pt(II) complex, we have considered N,N-dimethyl-N′-ethylethylenediamine (DMEEDA) as a carrier ligand, which has considerable σ-donor activity, and steric and electronic effects on Pt(II). Consequently, structural modification in carrier as well as leaving groups of Pt(II) complexes with specific optimization, might be suitable for Abstract: A p-nitrophenyl based rhodamine probe (NPRB) has been designed and synthesized for the selective, real-time detection of Al (III) in aqueous medium with a lower micromolar range detection limit at physiological pH. All the spectroscopic and theoretical analysis validated the proposed 1:1 complexation between NPRB and Al^{3+} along with an 80-fold enhancement in fluorescence intensity. Using the "turn on" response of the probe, binding of NPRB to Al^{3+} in the brain tissue of adult male zebrafish (D. rerio) has been visualized through fluorescence microscopy.

Introduction:

Chemosensors, based on optical signaling method, have been attracted a considerable attention in the research field of analytical chemistry by offering excellent sensitivity, selectivity, a platform for real time response and local observation accounting a low expenditure.[1-8] And when it is designed for metal selection especially for chelatable aluminium (Al^{3+}), the specific chemosensor demands a great importance as because aluminium possesses a lack of spectroscopic characteristics, strong hydration ability and poor coordination ability compared to the transition metals.[9] Aluminium, the third most abundant elements after oxygen and silicon, makes up about 8% of the Earth's crust by mass which awarded it the position of the most abundant metal in crust. In 1989 World Health Organization (WHO) declared it as one of the food pollution sources and limited its concentration to 200 µg/ L (7.41 µM) in drinking water[10] as it is found to be a neurotoxin to organisms since more than hundred years.[11] Apart from various neurodegenerative and neurological disorders like Parkinsonism dementia, osteomalacia, amyotrophic lateral sclerosis, Alzheimer's disease,[12] an unregulated amount of Al^{3+} ion in biological system can also cause gastrointestinal problems, extreme nervousness, headaches, interference with the metabolism of calcium, colic, rickets, breast cancer, memory loss, speech problems, aching muscles, anaemia, softening of the bones, decreased liver and kidney function[13,14] and inhibition of several essential elements of similar size and charge like Mg^{2+}, $Ca^{2+}$and Fe^{3+}.[15] With its all adverse effects, aluminium is still being cast off in every sphere of modern daily life, from aviation and automobile industry, building equipment to households. Reports say that the major sources of human oral exposure to aluminium are food, drinking water and oral drugs due to its widespread use in cooking utensils, food additives, food and beverage packaging, municipal water treatment and in aluminium-containing medications particularly antacid/ anti-ulcer and buffered aspirin formulations.[16] This is why WHO had limited the average daily human intake of Al^{3+} to 3–10 mg and to 7 mg kg^{-1} body weight as weekly tolerable dietary intake.[17]

Fish or any marine or aquatic creature could be an important source of neurotoxic aluminium ion accumulation in human body. Moreover aluminium acts as a toxic agent on gill-breathing animals by causing loss of plasma and hemolymph ions and can easily affects their osmoregulation process.[18] Retaining all the above things it is very important to detect and quantify Aluminium, continuously being consumed in our daily life.[19] So, here we have reported a new chemosensor which responses through fluorescence "turn-on" mechanism in presence of Al^{3+}. Al-induced neurotoxicity has been studied in rodents.[20,21] We tried to apply a new nitrophenyl appended rhodamine based fluorescent probe in brain tissue of zebrafish to detect Al^{3+} immediately. Though, in aluminium chloride-exposed zebrafish larvae neurological injury at the level of glial cells has been reported[22], early detection of Al^{3+} through appropriate chemosensor is being reported for the first time in the present study (comparison table S1).

Result and discussions:

Design and synthsis. A nitrophenyl based rhodamine probe (NPRB) was designed and synthesized for this purpose in a simple one-step reaction between Rhodamine B and p-nitro aniline in acetonitrile with the help of $POCl_3$ resulting 75% yield. The structure of NPRB was confirmed by ^1H NMR, ^{13}C NMR and Mass Spectrometry (Fig. S1-S4).

Absorbance and fluorescence studies. To illustrate the spectrophotometric characteristics of the probe NPRB with Al^{3+} ion, UV-vis and fluorescence spectroscopy titrations were carried out in CH_3CN/H_2O (1:8, v/v), pH 7.2 (10 mM phosphate

CJMC WORKROOM

Media Lab for the Budding Communicators

Sagarika, Debayan : Centre for Journalism and Mass Communication (CJMC) has built its own media lab– "CJMC Workroom" with the initiative of its post-graduate students (Batch 2014-16). After three months of tireless work put in by the students, an empty classroom has been turned into a full-fledged media lab with a giant projection, 5.1 3D surrounding system, Three-point lighting system, multi-track sound recording, soundproof recording room, chroma screen, editing console and virtual studio. In a small programme the lab was inaugurated by Vice-Chancellor Prof. Sushanta Dattagupta on 24 August, 2015 in presence of many dignitaries from the University. In the beginning, Dr. Mausumi Bhattacharyya, In-Charge, CJMC introduced the lab to the esteemed guests and also emphasized the historic role of the 34 post-graduate students (Batch 2014-16) in creating their own media lab. Guests were shown a short film on the making of the media lab which was made by the students to document the creation of the lab from scratch. A CJMC student Anjanabha Roy, the 'key architect' behind the lab, said that this would not have been possible without the full support of the In-Charge of CJMC. Dignitaries present in the programme– Pro-VC, Prof. Swapan Kr. Datta, Provost CCR&H, Prof. Tapati Mukherjee, Dr. D. Gunasekaran (former Registrar), Prof. V.C. Jha (Principal, Vidya-Bhavana) and Prof. Samit Ray (Proctor) heartily appreciated the efforts of the students.

1. VC, Principal, Vidya-Bhavana, Pro-VC, Provost, CCR&H inaugurating the lab; 2. Proctor Prof. Samit Ray at the recording room; 3. VC at the virtual studio; 4. Guests watching the students' film on giant projection screen; 5. CJMC PG students (Batch 2014-2016) with their faculty members after inauguration.

Visva-Bharati gets NAAC Accreditation

Banhisikha, Debayan, Sagarika : The first accreditation of Visva-Bharati by National Assessment and Accreditation Council (NAAC) took place in April 2015. A 16 member Peer Team from NAAC visited the university during April 27–30, for this purpose. Professor Bharat Chatoo was the Chairman of the Peer Team and the other esteemed members were Ex and current Vice-Chancellors and Professors of different universities across the country. During the four days of their stay, the Peer Team members visited all the departments and bhavanas and interacted with staff members from academic departments and administration as well as students, parents, alumni and members of all the committees and councils of Visva-Bharati. Further, they visited Patha-Bhavana and also attended the weekly prayer at the Mandir.

After their assessment, Visva-Bharati secured 2.82 out of 4 and was conferred Grade 'B' by NAAC. Prof. Tapati Mukherjee, Chairperson of NAAC Steering Committee (Coordinator) explained that the NAAC visit was a learning experience for the University. She also added, "the outcome although is not satisfactory for us as we expected 'A' Grade". She said that the major drawback was the inexperience in this regard and also mentioned that the recommendations made by the NAAC Peer Team are valuable for Visva-Bharati and the University is undertaking all necessary measures to attain better grade in future.

সাংবাদিকতা ও মূল্যবোধ

সংবাদপত্র সমাজের দর্পণ; সমাজ সংবাদপত্রের সামনে দাঁড়িয়ে নিজের দোষ-ত্রুটি বিচার করে, শোধন করে। আর এই দর্পণের অন্যতম প্রধান উপাদান— সাংবাদিক। তারা তাদের কলমের খোঁচায় সমাজকে তার প্রতিবিম্বের স্বরূপ দেখতে বাধ্য করে। এই খুব চেনা প্রতিষ্ঠিত পরম্পরাটাই বদলে যায় যখন দর্পণের কাঁচ তার স্বচ্ছতা হারিয়ে হয়ে ওঠে রঙিন; সাংবাদিকতা হারিয়ে ফেলে তার নিরপেক্ষ নির্ভীকতা। বঙ্গদেশের বহুল প্রচারিত সংবাদপত্রগুলি সম্পর্কে মানুষের মনে যে ধারণা গত দশ বছর ধরে গড়ে উঠেছে তা বিচার করলে একথা বলাই যায় যে বেশিরভাগ সংবাদপত্র পাঠকের প্রতি নৈতিক দায়িত্ব অতিক্রম করে গায়ে মেখেছে বিশেষ কিছু রঙ।

সমাজ বা পাঠকের দৃষ্টিভঙ্গি থেকে নয়; একজন সাংবাদিকতার ছাত্রের দৃষ্টিভঙ্গী থেকে এই সমস্যার উপর আলোকপাত করাই এই সম্পাদকীয়র মূল উদ্দেশ্য। আজ ভারতবর্ষের প্রায় প্রতিটি রাজ্যেই সাংবাদিকতা শিক্ষার সুযোগ রয়েছে। সরকারী ও বেসরকারী এই সমস্ত শিক্ষা প্রতিষ্ঠান থেকে প্রতি বছর কয়েক লক্ষ ছাত্র-ছাত্রী সাংবাদিকতায় স্নাতক বা স্নাতকোত্তর সম্মান অর্জন করছে। তাদের কাছে এই সমস্যাটি প্রভূত। কারণ তাদের ক্ষেত্রে স্বপ্ন আর বাস্তব হয়ে উঠছে ভিন্ন মেরুর বাসিন্দা; বাধছে সংঘাত।

পাশ করার পর পেশার জগতে ঢুকে তাদের স্বপ্ন বিশ্বাস গুলো কিন্তু বেশ বদলে যায়। তখন তাদের জানতে হয় কীভাবে উইলফ্রেড বার্চেট তাঁর নাগরিকত্ব হারিয়েছিলেন হিরোসিমা ও নাগাসাকির পারমাণবিক বোমাজনিত ক্ষয়ক্ষতির প্রকৃত স্বরূপ প্রকাশ করতে গিয়ে। তাদের পড়তে হয় বার্নার্ড গোল্ডবার্গ-এর লেখা "Bias : a CBS Insider Exposes How the Media Distorts the News".

পরিস্থিতির অবনতি ত্বরান্বিত করছে "Paid News". স্বাধীনতাপূর্ব ভারতবর্ষ যেখানে সাংবাদিকতার পবিত্রতা রক্ষা করার জন্য কোনোদিন বিজ্ঞাপন ছাপতে অস্বীকার করেছে, সেখানে আজ অনেক সংবাদপত্র বিজ্ঞাপনের জ্যাকেট বা হাফ জ্যাকেট পরে আত্মপ্রকাশ করে। কমবেশি সব রাজনৈতিক দলই আজ তাদের নিজস্ব সংবাদপত্র প্রকাশ করে; স্বাভাবিকভাবেই রাজনৈতিক প্রভাব যে সংবাদপত্রের অক্ষরের আকার-আকৃতি বদলাতে ভূমিকা গ্রহণ করছে তা বলাবাহুল্য।

অনেক ক্ষেত্রেই পাঠক্রমে পড়া "Media Ethics" খালি সুখস্বপ্ন হিসাবেই রয়ে যায় কর্মে যোগ দেওয়া নতুন ছাত্রদের কাছে। এসব কারণেই হয়তো আজ সাধারণ মানুষও টমাস জেফারসনের মত বিশ্বাস করতে শুরু করেছে যে, "The man who reads nothing at all is better educated than the man who reads nothing but newspapers."

তবে এই সম্পাদকীয় শুধু অন্ধকারের বিষণ্ণতাকে নয়, ভোরের প্রথম সূর্যকেও সমানভাবে উল্লেখ করার প্রয়াস রাখে। Alternative Media-র পদার্পন যে নতুন আশার আলো দেখাচ্ছে তাকে ধরে রাখতেও সমান আগ্রহী আজকের সমাজ। তাই তো একাধিক অনলাইন সংবাদপত্র শুধুমাত্র পাঠক-পাঠিকাদের অর্থেই পথ চলার দুঃসাহস দেখাচ্ছে। সাংবাদিকতার মূল ধারণাকে সম্মান জানিয়ে সংবাদে, পত্রিকা সংস্থার মতামত নয়; প্রাধান্য পাচ্ছে সাধারণ মানুষের মতামত, প্রকাশিত হচ্ছে সাধারণ মানুষের কথা-সমস্যা-প্রাপ্তি। পরিশেষে বলা যায় অন্যান্য পেশার মত আজ সাংবাদিকতা পেশাতেও ভালো-খারাপ, আলো-অন্ধকার পাশাপাশি অবস্থান করছে। অন্ধকার হয়তো নিশ্ছিদ্র; কিন্তু আলোর রেখাও রয়েছে— খুঁজে নেওয়া ব্যক্তিগতের অভিরুচি। পরিশেষে বলা যায় যে "House Policy", "Paid News", "Half Jacket" ইত্যাদির পরেও একটা কথা সাংবাদিকতা শব্দের সাথে যুক্ত সকল মানুষের মনে রাখা উচিত যে "Journalism is in fact history on the run".

CJMC Students' Achievements

Arpita, Shruti : In spite of being one of the youngest academic departments of the varsity, Centre for Journalism and Mass Communication has successfully added many feathers to its cap within a very short span of time.

This June, five alumnus of the department qualified the UGC NET exam for December - Deepa Rani (PG batch 2006), Debastuti Dasgupta (research scholar), Purabi Das (PG batch 2009), Nishant Gupta (PG batch 2014) and Ayesha Mollah (PG batch 2014).

Apart from this, three young talents of the PG batch (2014-2016) did exceedingly well at the Intra University Level Youth Fest 2015 namely Lokesh Chakma (3rd Prize for poster making), Bishakha Dutta (2nd Prize for debate) and Archisman Chakraborty (3rd Prize for mimicry).

Sainath started his lecture with focusing on how the bombing at Hiroshima and Nagasaki on 6 and 9 August 1945 respectively, changed the media scenario across the globe. He lucidly described the role of the journalists John Hersley, and William Lawrence who was deployed by the US government for publisizing the 'Manhattan Project' during the war. He also elucidated on the history of paid journalism and how this entire event was projected by the media as a technological miracle instead of the biggest devastation in human history. Thus, marking the birth of paid news which still infests mass media today. Sainath narrated how the US government had assigned twenty one reporters to cover the war, who were just the spectators under the leadership of Lawrence. Their reports focused more on the strength of the bombs rather than the death toll. Sainath also mentioned about an Australian journalist Wilfred Burchett who lost his citizenship for reporting the truth. The lecture was insightful and highly appreciated by the dignitaries and the students alike.

Dear Mausumi,

As always, I found my time with the students, going over their work with them in the studio, exhilarating. These are wonderful students and you have done a great job of nurturing them. I write now to say that we at PARI are taking on the following students as paid interns for a period of upto two months. We have had innumerable applications for internships from students at IIMC, SCM Sophia, ACJ, TISS and at least 10-12 other places. Of these we have taken one from ACJ, one from TISS, one from Ashoka University Journalism department and nine from CJMC ! There are also other unpaid volunteer interns, but all those from CJMC will receive an honorarium. Two of your students Anjanabha Roy and Pousita Datta will work on assignment basis for PARI, as was discussed.

Having looked at their work and their group dynamics, I felt it best to pair them up in teams of two members each, barring Ananya Chakraborty, whose film for PARI requires only a month's work. I had discussed the team idea with them, too. I think it will work very well. As PARI's Eastern Region Coordinator, you'll have to organise them and their output - which we will be happy to carry on PARI if it keeps to the same quality and standards I have seen these past two years. I shall, of course, be in the loop and coordinate with you.

1. Lokesh Chakma, Debayan Bhadury - Group 1
2. Sagarika Basu, Bishakha Datta - Group 2
3. Angshuman Das Mahapatra , Ajit Mandol - Group 3
4. Supriti Singha, Sramana Sengupta - Group 4
5. Ananya Chakraborty (one month)

Looking forward to this collaboration. They can start work from June 1. I will be sending the internship offer to all those named above, too.

I am CCing PARI's Managing Editor Namita Waikar on this mail.

thanks and regards

MCSD – 2019

Asian Congress for Media & Communication, India Chapter's 2nd International Conference
On
Media & Communication in Sustainable Development

Organized by: Centre for Journalism and Mass Communication, Visva-Bharati, Santiniketan, India

Dates: February 11-13, 2019

Venue: Visva-Bharati, Santiniketan, Birbhum, West Bengal, India

About Asian Congress for Media and Communication

The Asian Congress for Media and Communication (ACMC) is a Philippine-based international professional organization for media, communication, and language education working through different country chapters. Our role and engagements are fundamentally oriented to a society of change as a venue for mobilizing intellectual capital and building networks and linkages.

ACMC India Chapter is involved in promoting the cause of improving communication and media education through multifarious activities such as organizing conferences, discourses, workshops and advocating policy changes in communication and information sector. This Chapter is also engaged in taking up causes of opening up work opportunities in government and private sector. Currently, it is headquartered at the Centre for Journalism and Mass Communication, Visva-Bharati, Santiniketan, West Bengal.

About Visva-Bharati, Santiniketan

Visva-Bharati was founded by the Nobel Laureate Gurudev Rabindranath Tagore in 1921 with the vision of imparting quality man-making education to the students. The University has under-tree school from pre-primary to higher secondary as its constituent unit which Tagore founded in 1901. His vision of holistic education through natural progression from childhood to adulthood, and making participatory contribution in the neighbourhood is demonstrated in the activities and programmes of the University. In borrowing the motto of the institution from the Yajur-Veda (Chapter XXXII, Verse 8), i.e., 'yatraviśvaṃbhavatyekanīḍam' (where the world comes in one nest), Gurudev Rabindranath Tagore had envisaged Visva-Bharati as the meeting place of scholars and practitioners from across the globe. In May 1951, the Govt. of India declared Visva-Bharati to be "An Institution of National Importance" and accorded it the status of a Central University through Parliamentary procedure. Till date, the institution continues to draw inspiration from its founder's vision and strive towards academic excellence that may contribute towards human welfare.

About the MCSD Conference

The International Conference on Media & Communication in Sustainable Development is a chain of events inviting interactions from scholarly minds and field practitioners across the globe on theories, policies, innovations and practices in and for sustainable development. The chain commenced in 2016 with the coming together of academics, researchers, prominent practitioners, policy-makers and innovators from ten (10) countries across four continents in different domains of communication studies, politics, traditional and new media, business, information science, volunteerism and their related practices.

In this edition (2019) too, the attendees will interact with a variety of leading researchers, grass-root level communication workers, development organizations, policy-makers and prominent academics in the field. The conference will combine three days of discussions, plenary, paper, poster and panel sessions providing a learning opportunity for both young minds and senior delegates. The conference will be, apart from academics, equally beneficial to social entrepreneurs, policy-makers, communication practitioners and social-marketing strategists. The conference shall present a golden opportunity to all the participants to have a closer understanding of the academic field as well as the policy sector and the market needs.

Conference Objectives

This conference series has been proposed to fulfill the following objectives:

- To recognize and present ideas and experiments from the Communication trans-discipline which may inform and aid programmes for attaining 'Sustainable Development Goals' declared by United Nations organization.

- To bring to fore findings and generalizations from researches (both theoretical and applied) in the broad canvas of 'Devcom' appropriate for the 'pluri-dimensional' concept and reality of 'Ecologically Sustainable Trans-generational Progress' (2011).

Sub: Media doctor pilot with the George Institute for Global Health and University of Newcastle, Australia from August to December 2015

Dear Sir,

The George Institute for Global Health has initiated a pilot study on the reporting of health issues in the mainstream media by using the internationally acclaimed media tool in collaboration with the University of Newcastle, Australia. Four universities/institutions across the country will be part of the pilot. These are Lady Irwin College, New Delhi; Manipal University, Jaipur; Department of Mass Communication, University of Hyderabad and Department of Journalism and Mass Communication, Visva-Bharati University.

The project will begin from August 2015 and end in December 2015. Each University/institution will rate 35 news stories (25 in English media and 10 in Hindi media) as per a rating protocol and a score sheet to be used by all of them. The scores will be analyzed and the feasibility of the tool to rate health stories in the Indian media would be determined as a result. We hope to publish the paper in a reputed international journal.

Please find attached the media doctor protocol along with the score-sheet and the Rating Guide.

We hope that you will find being part of the project useful and that both students as well as faculty would benefit from the entire exercise.

Looking forward to working with you on this innovative pilot project

Yours sincerely,

to me

Dear Prof. Biplab,

Thank you very much for sharing the certificate design. We have just moved into a new office and therefore, I will get them printed in a couple of weeks and send it across.

In terms of taking this work forward, Dr. David Smith of University of Newcastle will be here from Jan 13 to 19, 2017 for a visit to release the media doctor booklet (draft attached with this mail). Please review the booklet and give your suggestions/feedback on the same. We welcome you to add your experience on using media doctor tool which can form part of the booklet.

We also request your help in organizing a press conference in Kolkata and a training at your university for both students and faculty members on how to use the tool. Will share the workshop/press conference design shortly. The program can be organized on Jan 16 and 17, 2017 or Jan 18 and 19, 2017 and can be co-branded with your University, as you have taken the lead in piloting media doctor in Eastern India.

Needless to say, this is your product as well and so you can take the lead in organizing the press conference/workshop. If you want to call journalism faculties from other institutions from the State, you are welcome!

We would also monitor the use of the tool by journalists for six months and there is a pre and post questionnaire that will be administered.

This is a very good opportunity to build on the work that we did earlier.

Expecting your support on this....

Regards

Kannan

PS : The certificates can be given personally at this workshop as well and we can add Dr. David Smith's name to the signatories if you think that would be a value-add to the students.

Respected Sir,

This is to bring to your kind attention, that in 1991, Professor Malay Mukhopadhyay, along with some other professors, scholars and students of Visva- Bharati had undertaken a trekking expedition along the banks of River Kopai, from its source to its confluence, and had also published a Bengali book about the experience.

To commemorate the Silver Jubilee of the 'Kopai Expedition,1991' and also to make a study of the temporal changes along the said river regime, this year we are going to organize another trekking expedition under the leadership of Prof. Mukhopadhyay , from 24th to 31st of December, 2017.

Around 40 participants will be a part of this expedition, most of whom are professors, scholars and students of Visva-Bharati. In addition to covering the full stretch of the river on foot we also have plans for setting up a 'Marker Stone' on the source of River Kopai in Khajuri, a village in Jharkhand.

In this regard we take the pleasure to request you to depute experts from your department for making a docu-feature film on the entire trek of eight days, under your supervision.

We are ready to sponsor and bare the expense of fooding and lodging for two students throughout the trek.

We are sending the map of the river along with the trekking itinerary for your perusal.

Looking forward for your cooperation and support in this venture.

Re: Letter of Reference for Jagdev Bains

Dear Sir:

Jagdev Bains has informed me that he would like to pursue doctoral studies in the Department of Physical Education at Visva-Bharati University and asked if I would provide a letter of reference. It is with upmost pleasure that I am providing this letter. Jagdev has been employed at our University of Victoria Office in Delta, BC (www.selfmanagementbc.ca) as the South Asian Program Coordinator for five years. His responsibilities are to initiate contact and collaboration with healthcare professionals, non-profit government organizations, religious and cultural institutions and community leaders throughout the province to undertake the recruitment, training and delivery of health related self-management programs led by trained volunteers to community members living with chronic health conditions.

He indicated that he has been considering this educational goal for quite some time and has a tentative focus for the research. At this point it would involve a comparative study of life cycle subject to well-being and self-management skills with South Asians in Canada and India. Jagdev also asked if I would consider being involved as a co-guide in this research. I responded positively as this type of research is in sync with current research projects and programs at our Centre.

I would like to focus this reference letter on attributes Jagdev has demonstrated during his employment with the University of Victoria. And, I believe these are particularly important and relevant in the pursuit of a PhD. degree. Specifically, I would like to provide comment in four areas, namely: Community Organization and Development, Communication Skills, Interpersonal Skills, and Personal Ability.

Community Organization and Development. Jay has unique and extensive skills in the ability to initiate outreach to health professionals and community members. He is particularly skilled in developing networks and building synergy between healthcare professionals and community members with the purpose of training community members to implement the Stanford University self-management programs. As well, he has been able to maintain and nurture these relationships which usually produce sustained programming.

Communication Skills. Jagdev has excellent oral and written communication skills. On numerous occasions I have had the pleasure of observing him at conferences, group meetings, university classrooms, and on radio and television programs. He is clear and succinct in his messaging and is able to effectively deliver his messages to diverse audiences.

Interpersonal Skills. Over time, Jagdev has successfully developed a wide range of colleagues and collaborators throughout the communities. With this extensive network he has been able to harness the enthusiasm, skills and resources of a vast network in achieving his goals. I believe that Jagdev's sincerity and integrity have played a large part in this accomplishment. Requests for collaboration and assistance are responded to in a positive manner.

Personal Ability. I am aware that Jagdev already possesses two Masters Degrees, one in Physical Education and the other in English. This degree of professionalism has been evident in his work at the University, as he is a mature and responsible individual and has always been well-prepared for the tasks at hand. His collaboration and contributions have been integral to a number of our successful endeavours.

I believe that Jagdev's educational and research plans constitute a good collaboration between Visva-Bharati University and the University of Victoria. I am a professor in the School of Public Health and Social Policy at University of Victoria and Jagdev asked if I would consider participating as a co-guide in his proposed research. I believe that my university role would be essential with respect to many of the ethical considerations in conducting research with this particular population, and responded positively to Jagdev's request.

Sincerely,

Patrick McGowan, PhD

Director, Self-Management BC
